November 10

New Orleans, Oct. 19.

The following articles have been handed us for publication by a gentleman recently from Matagorda; they were originally written in Spanish, and the translation having been made hastily, may be deficient in precision of style, but is literally accurate.

New Establishment at Matagorda and Galveston, in the province of Texas, appertaining to the government of Mexico.

A small squadron, well armed & equipped, under the command of M. Aury, has taken possession of the posts of Matagorda and Galveston. This squadron being the property of the said commander, had for a considerable time, been engaged in promoting the independence of South America, under the flag of Carthagen.

During the siege of that place they had fought gallantly against the Spaniards & protected the besieged as much as was in their power, until they were reduced to the inevitable necessity of emigrating.

On the fall of Carthagen, Mr. Aury, with all the officers under his command, offered their services to the Republic of Mexico, from which he obtained authority to cruise and permission to occupy the posts of Matagorda and Galveston, whether he went under a passport from the late governor of Carthagen. This expedition just arrived at its destination, when some turbulent persons, exclusively occupied with their own interests, and incapable of rendering any service to humanity, began to spread rumours, in order to seduce and alarm the faithful and more numerous part of the division, endeavoring to persuade them that they had not come thither with the noble object of assisting the Mexican patriots, engaged in the glorious contest for their liberty, but that the sole object was, to compel them by force to undergo the drudgery of cultivating sugar cane. By this means they drew after them a considerable number of partisans, and by exciting a mutiny at the camp, they would have strangled in its birth this important establishment.

Had it not been for some prudent and brave men, who opposed the mutineers and obliged them to take flight in three vessels, which they had previously prepared, in case they should be defeated in attaining their object. They stole and carried away with them some merchandise and were accompanied by about 200 mule-contents; this was all the injury produced by the commotion. Two days afterwards the Mexican minister arrived with an ample supply of military stores for the purpose of organizing the establishment, conformably to the powers and instructions given to him by the republic.

He was received as its deputy, and the oaths of obedience and fidelity were received by him from the commander and his officers. The rest of the forces had taken the same oaths before their respective officers, and raised the Mexican flag with all the usual ceremonies. The minister has issued the following

DECREE.

Citizen Joseph Manuel de Herrera, deputy of the Mexican republic.

By virtue of the powers and instructions given to me by the Mexican congress, I order and command, that until the said congress shall sanction a form of government more conducive to the welfare and happiness of this province of Texas, the following articles relative to the establishment of Matagorda and Galveston, shall be observed. The constitutional decree respecting settlements and villages in the rest of the province, remains in full force:

1. There shall be a civil and military governor, who shall discharge his functions agreeably to the laws and ordinance enacted by the republic, and shall obey the supreme executive power of the nation; there shall likewise be a secretary to certify the acts of the governor.

2. There shall be a collector of the revenue and a treasurer, subordinate to the governor, who shall obey the acts and decrees of the congress; the governor shall appoint the under officers necessary to the due administration of the treasurer's office.

3. There shall be a court of admiralty, taking cognizance of cases falling under its jurisdiction, judging and deciding according to the laws of nations and of the admiralty, with a clerk to certify the acts of the tribunal.

4. There shall be a judge to act in civil and criminal cases. His jurisdiction shall extend in civil cases to all sums not exceeding one hundred dollars, and in criminal cases his powers shall extend to no farther than imprisonment; there shall be a clerk to this court, which may be denominated the tribunal of justice.

5. There shall be a superior judge with his clerk—this judge shall take cognizance of cases of appeal as well from the inferior tribunal of justice, as from the court of admiralty; his jurisdiction shall also extend to all sums above the one mentioned in the preceding article, and to criminal cases where the punishment may exceed imprisonment, observing the 19th article of the constitution, relative to sentences of death and banishment; there shall be an appeal from this court to the supreme tribunal, according to the rules prescribed by the laws of the republic.

6. There shall be a notary public to authenticate all contracts, writings, powers, and other similar instruments, and now erected just below it.

an alcazar or to execute sales, seizures and other orders of the court.

7. The governor shall determine according to circumstances a place between Matagorda and Galveston for his own residence and that of the officers appointed for the new establishment.

Given in Galveston, the 17th day of Sept. 1816, and 7th of Mexican independence.

Joseph Manuel Herrera.

A. M. Morin.

Secretary ad interim to the legation.

In consequence of this decree the following appointments were made:

Governor of this new establishment, citizen Louis Aury.

Judge of Admiralty, citizens Joseph Torrens.

Clerk of the court, citizen Vincent Veros.

Notary Public, citizen Gabriel Torrens.

Treasurer, citizen John Peter Rousselin.

Alcazar mayor, citizen Jean Baptiste Dumoussiaux.

Several considerations have induced the governor and the authorities to take up their residence for the present at Galveston, a detachment of soldiers will remain at Matagorda to protect the natives of the province who are uniting at that place. The Spaniards at La Bahia and St. Antonio have received orders to retreat to the rio del Norte; where it appears they are determined to make a stand.

PROCLAMATION.

Joseph Manuel de Herrera in the name of the Mexican Republic.

Matagorda is ours. The extensive & healthy province of Texas is free; its inhabitants filled with enthusiasm, fly to the standard of independence. The constitution of the Mexican Republic has succeeded the despotism of the Spanish monarchy. The oppressor fly before us, there is no obstacle to retard our march into the interior of the other provinces. A commodious and safe harbor; a respectable land and naval force; magazines well supplied with arms and ammunition, a soil fertile in all the necessities of life—we want nothing but to exterminate our enemies, and drive the miserable remnant into the ocean. The troops of the republic advance in every direction; the bands of the tyrant, which infest the provinces of Vera Cruz and Oaxaca, will soon be defeated and driven out. In a short time the flag of Spain will float no longer on the Gulf of Mexico.

Courtmens you may now accumulate the valuable productions of our soil, if you wish to exchange them for the fruits of foreign industry. Our commerce shall be open to all the world, under a system founded on principles of equity.

Inhabitants of Texas be proud that you have been taken under the protection of the constitution of the republic. "How yourselves worthy of the rank to which you have been elevated. Fan the sacred fire of liberty, just kindled in the bosoms of our hitherto unfortunate brethren, just emancipated from the chains of despotism. Such conduct will be crowned with the blessings of heaven. Obey the laws, comply faithfully and exactly with your contracts, display to the world the honor, humanity and generosity of your character. Cultivate with the utmost care a brotherly intercourse and friendship with the republic of the North; abstain from all illegal commerce, especially within the United States; every violation of the laws shall be punished with inflexible severity. Smugglers and pirates shall suffer death. The friend of liberty, the oppressed and the brave shall always find a home and country among the people of Mexico. We will receive with open arms all who respect our laws and our independence.

JOSEPH M. DE HERRERA.

18th Sept. 1816.

7th year of Mexican Independence.

NOTE—The installation of officers, & the publication of the laws and organization of the government will take place immediately.

We learn by the armed schooner Constitution lately from Arguerita, that General Manganot, an Englishman, by birth, and Gen. Salbette, commanding two divisions of the Republicans under Gen. Bolivar had obtained considerable successes over the Royalists and had formed a junction with Gen. Bermudez. Of all the patriots who have heretofore made head against the Royalists, in that quarter he is the only one who commands a respectable force.

General Bolivar himself was on his return to the Isle of Margarita whether he had sent orders to Gen. Manganot and Gen. Piar to form a junction with Gen. Mendez, while he was advancing to assume the command.

On the sixth September the captain of the Constitution spoke a Dutch vessel from Curacao, for Jamaica, which informed him that the patriots had taken Cumana.

LONDON, September 30.

EAST INDIES.

Extract of a letter from Cawnpore.

We next visited a favorite residence of the present Vizier, called Moorbarck Munzul, a small house on the bank of the Goomty, the lowest down the V. has, except a white marble building channah, with the pagoda, and near it a Moorrick Munzul is elegantly furnished, the principal room has a looking glass ceiling, in it is a painting of a tiger. The gardens are in the old-fashioned style, full of orange and lime trees, flowering shrubs and flowers, all the year round, in succession, except the winds, (the winter vegetation in India) interspersed with statues and vases.

"On the opposite side the Goomty, we had a mock elephant fight, between two females trained for the purpose.

"An officer having expressed a desire to see an elephant and crocodile fight, which had been previously talked of by the Vizier and his courtiers, His Excellency had the goodness to send to the river Gograt, and ordered several to be caught and brought on hackeries, to the Goomty. We walked from Moorbarck Munzul over a new bridge of boats with wooden rowers, battlements, and braziers for cannon upon it, to the opposite side, and there was an immense crocodile and middle sized crocodile alive, with several of the latter lying dead.

The elephants were brought up to the crocodile, and one of the latter, with his foot, so as almost to crush it, but although the crocodile screamed with pain, it recovered. The elephant would not be made to attack the large alligator, than which a more hideous monster cannot be imagined, with a prodigious long head and sharp teeth, a prodigious approach near to it, carefully rolled up the proboscis into the smallest possible circumference, and whenever one came near the alligator, made a snap at it, the proboscis, or one of the legs of the elephant, the jaws meeting without seizing any part of the animal, gave a smart sound, that might have been heard at some distance. A country dog was then brought and tied near the alligator, who got it completely in his mouth, the dog at times escaping out, attacking and biting the monster's nose, or substance at the extremity of the jaw, making it bleed freely, although at one time the dog's hind foot was in its mouth, and gave so severe a crush between its long and formidable teeth, the dog appeared dead—water was then thrown by ditches upon the alligator and dog, and the latter liberated from the mouth of the monster; when, to our very great surprise and pleasure, up rose the dog and run off, this occurred with two country dogs and both got off safe. It was not a very gratifying spectacle, but certainly a very curious one.—The crocodile and alligator, were no doubt greatly enfeebled by having been brought from so great a distance tightly bound with cords upon hackeries, and out of their own element, besides which they were not released from the cords, when attacked with elephants and dogs. Moorbarck Munzul is crowded with curiosities, fine furniture, and most beautiful lustre wall grandoloes.

"We then visited Mirza Wakhidkote a house built by Mahomed-uz-Zam, once minister to Asaph-ul-Dowlah, a nobleman well known and much esteemed by all the European gentlemen at Lucknow; this house is built on a high mound, near the Goomty; it has a number of fine rooms, elegantly furnished. The view from this house, both up and down this river, is very interesting and beautiful.

"We afterwards crossed Goomty immediately opposite General Munul's house, now named Bux, in one of the prettiest pleasure boats I ever beheld. It is cased on the outside with silver plates, embossed with devices, and gilt below the water mark, a canopy of light green satin lined with pink satin, silver embroidery, fringe and tassels, the masts and sails highly decorated; it is impossible for any boat to be more princely and beautiful for its size; there are several other larger and very handsomely decorated boats, but none like this. His Excellency's spinances, badgerows snake, and a prodigious number of other boats, of all description lay here at Moorbarck Munzul; on landing we proceeded to a building called Deharum, or vulgarly the lantern house, erected in the English style by the late Vizier; it derives its name from its being three stories high, and of no considerable breadth or depth. From this house the bank of the river is sloped and formed into a flower garden, in the rear is an extensive park, in which brood mares and their colts are kept, and add much to the liveliness of the scene. The view of the Vizier's various palaces & buildings on the opposite side is strikingly beautiful.

"Some days after we were invited by his Excellency to a shooting party and breakfast at a hunting house, in an extensive runna near the cantonments of Maneecown about three miles from the residence, on the opposite side of the river, built by the Vizier, and whimsically ornamented round the freeze of each room with the Alphabet, in Roman characters, A B C &c. In repeated succession, and from thence called the A B C house.

"When we crossed the bridge of brick and mortar masonry, erected by Asaph-ul-Dowlah, over the river Goomty, there was a little haze in the air but returning home the sun had dispersed it, and shone beautiful upon the various buildings with their gilded domes, spires &c. mosques and palaces of Lucknow, from the centre of the bridge, the view is enchanting on both sides; to the right, up the river, on the opposite side, stands the grand Enambarah, its mosque courts and magnificent gateways. The lowly channah, with the pagoda, and near it a very large building erected by Mhera, who had been head of the Asaph-ul-Dowlah, and in his excellency's service. It has a Frenchified style, but is not quite finished, but it is completely roofed in, and furnished with doors and windows, it is turned down, to lodge part of the present Vizier.—From the present enlarged mind, free from old prejudice, we may very reasonably expect at some future period, it to be finished. On the left bank of the bridge, stands the Sovvergers palace, a most extensive range building, with double walls, as in his Indian Tour, gives beyond this is a place named Asaph-ul-Dowlah built during his reign, then the house, on the opposite side of the Goomty is crowded with boats busily employed, and the on both sides is cultivated with tobacco, to the water's edge.

"Early next morning we went to a large spot of ground, near the grand stables enclosed with a wall where his excellency's war horses and birds are kept. Tigers, Shyghashes, Bears, Monkeys, &c. Sables, Flying Foxes, &c. dance, the most curious animal of the Rangoon Hill Dogs, called liamson, Dnools, which that are reported to unite in bodies of five hundred, hunt and kill the cious Tiger; some people say that it is a vast variety of animals look like a very large English Fox, it is true I have seen these 30 ears. These animals tremble visibly, continually round their cage, and the keep me rationally barked like a cassowary, pheasants of all kinds, some of the most beautiful parakeets, bearded, brown bodies and purple breasts; green ditto with green breasts, streaked and yellow."

PRINTING
Neatly executed at the Office of the A lexandria Gazette.

To the Public.

Having understood that certain persons who are desirous of obtaining the appointment of Harbor Master, which I now hold, have circulated a report that I have resigned that office, and have by means of this story, prevailed upon several respectable citizens to recommend them as proper persons to fill the pretended vacancy—I beg leave respectfully to inform my fellow citizens, that I never did resign the said office which is all important to me in my old age, nor have I any idea of doing so. It is true that I have been afflicted with an illness which has prevented me from giving that PERSONAL attention to the duties of the office which I wished; but, thank God, I am fast recovering, and hope soon to be able to attend to business as usual.

In the mean time, I humbly trust, that my fellow citizens will not be imposed upon; to give their aid in promoting the views of my enemies, and thus to deprive me of the chief support of my old age.
